Call for Submissions Deadline:

June 1, 2022

"Health Effects of Bullying, Bigotry, and Discrimination"

The 2022 Global Health Summit on Violence and Abuse will provide a collegial environment for participants to network with colleagues and share advances in prevention, research and trauma-informed practice when caring for patients impacted by violence and abuse. Globally, we continue to grapple with the effects of trauma caused by bigotry, multiple forms of bullying, racism, the pandemic, political unrest, human trafficking, and more.

- Participants will be able to learn more about the AVA, including its mentoring, affinity groups, global development, and meet others with similar interests.

- The AVA provides mentoring and development opportunities for members to plan and develop their professional careers and research.

This Summit is intended for professionals, students and trainees from multiple disciplines, including criminal justice, attorneys, counseling, dentistry, family therapy, medicine, nursing, nutrition, pharmacy, physical and occupational therapy, psychology, public health, and social work. AVA is particularly interested in providing an academic forum for those working to systematically address different forms of abuse in unique clinical settings, improve teaching in the health professions as well as scientific research in the area of violence and abuse.

AVA welcomes proposals for presentations that will foster an interprofessional exchange of solutions for the challenges of addressing violence and abuse in the health care setting. Reports of original clinical programs, research related to violence and/or abuse and health or health professional education are particularly welcome. The research may pertain to clinical, economic, health systems, curricular, or faculty development issues in relation to local, national and global efforts to address violence and abuse.

Topics to consider but not required:

- Health effects of all forms of bullying, bigotry, and discrimination
- Prevention of violence and abuse across the lifespan
- Implementation of trauma informed care in health care, legal and educational settings
- Research that sheds light on the biological pathways through which exposure to violence and/or abuse affects physical and/or mental health
- New findings from neuroscience and biochemistry of changes resulting from abuse and methods of measuring or identifying these changes
- Promising ways of modifying or reversing health effects in the exposed population
- Clinical approaches to treating abuse issues such as improving the health care response (e.g. interdisciplinary and holistic models)
- The cost of health care related to exposure to violence and abuse
- Health professional education including evidence-based education, studies of what changes practice and what leads to competency
- Inter-professional curricula related to teaching about violence and abuse
- Resilience – measuring, teaching, enhancing
- Corporal Punishment
- Ethics
- Growth from "Me Too" Movement
- Trauma from COVID-19 pandemic

General Information and Instructions

Please email your submissions in Word or PDF documents, following the directions in the "Call for Submissions," to nicole@avahealth.org.

Please note that the deadline for submission is June 1, 2022.

Submission Directions: Designate Long Paper, Short Paper or Poster. List name(s), affiliations and contact information for presenter(s). Provide the Title of your presentation followed by an Abstract of up to 500 words that includes Background, Methods, Results and Discussion/Conclusions. Please indicate if you will present in-person or virtual.

Long Papers

Purpose: To provide a more detailed discussion of new research, concepts or approaches that advance the understanding and integration of these concepts into health care systems. These presentations will be grouped by topic and will be 20 minutes (1 min per slide) with 10 minutes discussion. Several breakout groups will run concurrently.

Short Papers

Purpose: These presentations should be designed to inform the attendees of new research, concepts, or approaches that advance the understanding and integration of these concepts into health care systems. These presentations will be grouped by topic and will be 15 minutes (1 minute per slide) with 5 minutes for discussion. Several breakout groups will run concurrently.

Poster Presentations: Graduate and Undergraduate students are encouraged to submit!

Purpose: Poster presentations are an opportunity to display and discuss with interested conference participants your new research, concepts, or approaches that advance the understanding and integration of these concepts into the health care system. (Exposure, 2 hours interactive time in-person at reception Thursday evening. If poster is sent at least a week prior to the event, it will be posted on the website. If not, it will be posted after the event.)

Disclaimer: At this time, AVA intends to host an in-person Global Health Summit. If circumstances prevent us from meeting in-person, we will shift the conference to a virtual platform.
